There is a wide choice of garden furniture available on the market today, ranging from a simple wooden bench through to a magnificent travertine marble furniture set. In choosing your furniture the important criteria are price, design and suitability. With suitability you're up against space, position and climate.

Wicker and rattan garden furniture has become increasingly popular. Wicker is generally used for chairs and in some instances as table leg panels. If choosing wicker look for the term 'Dura-Wicker' and you will be ensured that the product is manufactured and woven with the highest grade wicker that is tough, weather resistant and durable. Modern rattan garden furniture is very fashionable and is suitable for home and garden. It's extremely hardwearing, weather resistant and can be left outside in the garden all-year round.
